As a versatile player, who can comfortably play all defensive and holding-midfielder positions, I feel I am a very confident young man who possesses the skills and determination to effectively contribute to my team. I play equally with both feet and frequently take set-plays. Due to my physique, I command an aerial presence and receive praise from both teammates and spectators with regards to my technically gifted skill sets. I am also very vocal and enjoy organizing my fellow teammates in order to have a better presence as a collective. My goal is to play university soccer in the United States and hopefully go on to play professional after I receive my degree in kinesiology. I have a passion for both soccer and sports therapy and am looking for the right institution to help me become a better athlete, a master of my field as well a better human being.
